Gifts Given, Gifts Received: Reflections on Being ITAA President

by Lucy Freedman

Thank you, ITAA. At this holiday time of gift giving, I am aware of how much richer I am for having served as your President. You have allowed me the opportunity to grow into a wiser, more skilled, more capable person.

While I am ready to give up the work of leading this organization, it is hard to let go of the role, which I have enjoyed fulfilling.

My motivation in taking the job was to learn what I could while contributing to the ITAA at a crucial change point in its development. I offered to the ITAA some principles I believe in, skills I had built, and the time and energy to care about what happens to this Association. What I hoped to learn in return was how an OK-OK organization can be structured on a world level.

Now I've had my shot at it, and I'm very happy to have taken on the challenge. I have the satisfaction of experiencing the ITAA as a healthy organization and the excitement of anticipating our future accomplishments. I've been pleased to find out that some of the principles I wanted to apply really can make a difference.

For example, my intent has been to:

- trust that an entity such as the ITAA has its own energy and direction, and to help clarify them
- find ways to say yes to the things people are willing to accomplish
- talk about what we do want, not what we don't want
- keep communications channels open, and enable access to decision making
- expand interpersonal, intergroup, intercultural understanding

One of the things I have learned about global cooperation is that, no matter what the trends are in psychotherapy, organizational communication, or education, TA is here to stay because it is such a valid model. What the ITAA can do as an organization is to continue developing standards, the practice of TA, and the exchange of

TA Has Role to Play in China Today

by Bobbie Barry

The 25th Annual Summer Conference in Chicago last August was the occasion for a stimulating networking session with our first ITAA member from the People's Republic of China, Professor Zhang Cuiran of Chengdu University and National Southwest Teacher's College. Professor Zhang shared some background on how his career has been affected by the upheavals of modern Chinese history, as well as his hopes for the future of China and the role he believes TA can play in that future.

Professor Zhang was born in 1922 in Anhui Province in Eastern China, trekked west with his schoolmates during the Japanese invasion, and graduated in 1947 from National Sichuan University with a major in educational psychology and a minor in English. Unfortunately, he has often been unable to pursue these two academic interests. Immediately after the People's Republic was established, English was labeled an imperialist language; later psychology had to be taught following Soviet theoretical models, and during the Cultural Revolution, both subjects were forbidden.

For three years during the Cultural Revolution, Professor Zhang traveled through China following Chairman Mao from city to city in order to observe this mass psychological phenomenon in person. Eventually the need for English was once again recognized, and he was called back to Sichuan to set up teacher training programs in English language and in language teaching methodology.

Zhang discussed connections between TA and modern and traditional Chinese values; for example, both emphasize mutual affection and respect in human relationships.

Currently, psychology is again considered a valuable resource for progress in China. Professor Zhang's wish is that the knowledge about human behavior provided by psychology will give people a tool for conflict resolution so that it will not be necessary to rely solely on force to oppose oppression or exploitation, as happened during the Cultural Revolution.

Professor Zhang was introduced to TA while acting as interpreter for Dr. Erhard Fischer, who gave a four-day presentation on TA and language teaching during a visit to China by the European Research Centre of Nuclear Physics in May 1986. Dr. Fischer put him in touch with Jenni Hine, an ITAA Certified Member from Switzerland, who arranged for Zhang to become an ITAA Affiliate Member in October 1986. Professor Zhang attended the TA 101 Course given at the Chicago Conference and is now a Regular Member.

During the networking session, Professor Zhang discussed a number of connections between TA and modern and traditional Chinese values; for example, both emphasize mutual affection and respect in human relationships. (These ideas are developed more fully in a paper by Professor Zhang which is available upon request from the ITAA office.) When expanded by the system of techniques for change and the range of practical fields of application of TA, the basic theory of interpersonal relationships of traditional Eastern culture may become a valuable part of a new world culture. Professor Zhang is looking forward to introducing TA concepts and techniques to his colleagues and students and to participating in the continuing dialogue between TA people of Eastern and Western cultures.

Mr. Zhang Cuiran, first ITAA member from the People's Republic of China, with ITAA Executive Director Susan Sevilla during Chicago Summer Conference

Members who would like to correspond with Professor Zhang may contact him at the Foreign Language Department, Chengdu University, Chengdu, Sichuan, People's Republic of China.

Bobbie Barry is an ITAA Regular Member from Evanston, Illinois, USA. □

EDITOR'S COLUMN

Being "Angerable" Doesn't Mean Goodbye

I sometimes wonder why I get that excited feeling whenever a family or friend group reunion gets close. ITAA conferences fit into that category, and we've got one coming up in January.

Sometimes I get angry at family or friends, and sometimes I get angry at ITAA also. As is true of people, some things that ITAA does are very angerable. (Robin Fryer says there's no such word, but I exerted my power and made her keep it in. I guess I can be angerable, too.)

Many years ago I went to a lecture at the University of New Mexico to hear a speaker who billed himself as an existential Rabbi. To be honest, I don't remember a thing he said, but I clearly remember a question from the audience after his talk. The audience member asked the Rabbi how he could still believe in God after the Holocaust. The Rabbi replied, "To be honest with you, I'm enraged at God, but he's still my God. I guess it wasn't enough to end the relationship, but I'm damn mad at Him."

I think I remember that statement so vividly because it taught me the meaning of commitment. Too many of us, in my opinion, haven't learned that lesson yet. Which brings me back to the upcoming ITAA Winter Congress. Being at the conference is one behavioral sign of commitment. It also strengthens the bonds among those of us with a TA-oriented frame of reference. When you're not there, it's a loss to all of us.

I personally want to meet and spend time with each of you. I know that's impossible, and also that I'm somewhat shy. If I don't approach you, will you approach me? I would feel enriched by the contact.

Yes, I get angry at some of what ITAA does, but it's still my organization, and I'll be there!

Question for the Month: What does commitment mean to you? □

ideas and information. There will be enough demand by people who want to learn TA and to have a worldwide network that we have good reason to exist. The difference we can make depends on our ability to focus on clear goals while supporting the diversity of TA practitioners.

The second thing I have gained is a heightened awareness of the meaning of active and passive behavior. Regardless of whether people speak the language of TA or not, those who take responsibility for getting results in the world, or in the organization, get them. Those who don't get to complain instead. The best organizational design allows people to coordinate their efforts so their results are multiplied. This keeps them motivated to stay involved. To the extent that the organization "does people something," or tries to impose control, people become demotivated, and the work of the organization becomes a heavy burden carried by a few. An active organization attracts people. The ITAA's reorganization and new purpose are intended to support activity, not to spoon feed or control.

The third thing I learned is more personal. I found out that I am capable of more than I had imagined possible. Being President while the ITAA is reorganizing at least doubled the size of the job. It became my priority, somewhat to the detriment of my own professional interests, and it demanded that I perform at a higher level than ever before.

Now I've had my shot, and I'm very happy to have taken on the challenge.

During the whirlwind of the Chicago conference, I realized that I have really had to grow in order to handle it all and still feel good about the quality of the results. What a gift for me!

At the same time, I learned the dependency involved in leadership. My biggest concern for the ITAA is that we are not as successful at bringing in new people, new ideas, new energy, as we need to be. Those people who are involved are very committed. I have new appreciation for all of us who thrive on contributing to the good of the community. However, we need to confront whatever is preventing us from attracting more of the kind of energy and creativity that started this club in the first place.

Last, I have learned how wonderful it is to serve with such a fine group of colleagues and such an excellent staff. It is partly for this reason that I have no intention of disappearing from the ITAA. On the contrary, I feel more involved than ever. I look forward to supporting the new President, Vince Gilpin, in my role as Past-President and Transition Team Coordinator. I am eager to be part of what is to come. □

EXECUTIVE DIRECTOR'S COLUMN

by Susan Sevilla

It's Been a Very Good Year

As the year draws to a close, I think back on 1987 with a high degree of satisfaction. The ITAA has continued to maintain its vitality and viability in the face of the challenges of the eighties.

We are proud of our membership, which now numbers 4800. Of these, 2,222 are ten-year members (with 245 new ten-year members added in 1987). And for the first time, thirteen twenty-five-year members were honored at the 25th Annual Summer Conference in Chicago in August.

1987 was witness to a remarkable new trend: After many years of US domination in the membership statistics, the ITAA membership is now 47% non-US. Because the growth rates outside are so high, I predict that by next December the US membership will represent a minority.

The ITAA is now represented in 60 countries around the world. We are excited by our expanding membership in new areas such as the People's Republic of China, Poland, and Bahrain.

Interest in TA training is picking up. The Scholarship Loan Fund is once again being called upon for support in the form of loans to trainees under contract for TA certification. For the first time, the Loan Fund is open to non-US members. Although outright grants are rare, in 1987 three grants were approved, with two going to non-US trainees.

The ITAA Research and Education Division is intensifying its activities. We were also proud to offer the Eric Berne Memorial Scientific Award in 1987 to Carlo Moiso for his work on "Ego States and Transference."

In addition, the Eric Berne Fund for the Future has now attained the level of donations necessary to begin making grant awards for research and education. In 1987, the first grant was made to Linda Darlene Hargus of Humboldt State University in Arcata, California, for her research, "A Comparative Study of Ego State Profiles: Battered Women Versus Non-Battered Women".

Research has shown that current members are our most important source of new members. I want to take this opportunity to recognize a few individuals for their outstanding contributions to the ITAA in this area. First and foremost, Mary Goulding, MSW, of the Western Institute for Group and Family Therapy, in Watsonville, California deserves special recognition for sponsoring 50 new ITAA members in 1987. She was also the largest new member sponsor in 1986, when 42 new members joined the ITAA under her auspices.

Second, I want to acknowledge and thank Pio Scilligo, PhD, and Maria Serena Barreca, PhD, of the Instituto de Ricerca sui Processi Intrapsichici e Relazionali, in Rome, Italy, for their contribution. Together they sponsored 41 new ITAA members.

Other notable new member sponsors include Jeff White, RE, DCP, of Perth, Australia, who sponsored 12 new members, Kozo Rokkaku, MD, of Tokyo, Japan, and Maria Gilbert, MA, of London, England, each of whom sponsored 6 new members, and Vann Joines, MDiv, of Chapel Hill, North Carolina, who sponsored 5 new members.

Special recognition must also go to those who sponsored four new members each in 1987 — Annika Bjorck (Sweden), Vince Gilpin (Canada), and Anthony White (Australia). And thanks also to those who sponsored 3 new members each in 1987 — Gail Broady (Australia), Petruska Clarkson (England), Bill Cornell (USA), Maryln Crossen (USA), Suzanne Dunn (USA), Jorge Escribano (France), Sue Fish (England), Linda Gregory (Australia), Gordon Hewitt (New Zealand), Gail Nordeman (USA), Ilka Peck (USA), Brenda Schaeffer (USA), Bernhard Schibalski (West Germany), and Roberto Villegas (Mexico). Finally, special thanks to those who sponsored two new members in 1987 — Richard Abell (USA), Sophia Caracushanky (Brazil), Remy Filliozat (France), Lucy Freedman (USA), Ted Harrison (USA), David Jarvis (USA), Jack Kaufman (USA), Lucie King (USA), George Kohlrieser (USA), Gloria Noriega (Mexico), Nelly Micholt (Belgium), Thomas Ohlsson (Sweden), Russell Osnes (USA), Emilio Said (Mexico), Ian Stewart (England), Lilly Stuart (England), and Laurie Weiss (USA).

This list does not include the countless advanced members, to whom we are grateful and indebted, who sponsored one new member in 1987. If only space permitted, I would list all of your names!

Best wishes to all ITAA members for a happy holiday season and a wonderful New Year. □

A panel of OD and ED experts will lead off the conversation, with opportunities for others in the workshop to join in. The panel will consist of Edie Bogusky-Beaujon, Jean Clarke, Bruce Loria, and Russ Osnes, with Carol Gesme facilitating.

The first two questions considered by the panel will be: (1) what kinds of things do we do in our respective areas of specialization? and (2) what is our place in the ongoing story (script) of the ITAA?

This panel is a particular opportunity for those with OD and ED specializations to meet for a stimulating discussion and sharing of ideas. We hope you will join us for this and the other exciting events at the 1988 Winter Congress.

SUGGESTIONS FOR IMPROVEMENT

Dear Editor:

As a Regular Member, I suggest that The Script carry more information on new books, videotapes, slides, etc., in addition to names and addresses of associations, when their conferences are, and where to write for details. As a paying member for over ten years, I wonder why the Japanese group has never sent me any fliers on their conventions or projects. Keep up the good work!

Jerry Novotny, Kochi, Japan

Dear Jerry:

We love to get such constructive feedback and such nice appreciation — thank you for writing.

Regarding your comments, we encourage members to send us brief announcments about their new books and multimedia projects, although longer reviews are currently printed only in the TAJ. As for names and addresses of associations, we have done that in the past and will no doubt do so again. In the meantime, anyone who wishes that information can get an updated list from the ITAA office. We also run a TA Conferences Worldwide calendar (as often as space permits) which includes information about where to write for further details.

Finally, to our Japanese members, we also would like to hear more about you and your activities — how about it?

SEARCH FOR DEVELOPER OF QUESTIONNAIRE

Dear Editor:

We have discovered a TA questionnaire that we feel will have great value if computerized. The questionnaire has several parts: a Parental Behavior Checklist (NPBC and PPBC for negative and positive messages); a translation of negative and positive behaviors into injunctions and "goers"; and a Driver/Allower questionnaire. We would like to know who the author is so we can give appropriate credit and perhaps collaborate with him or her. If anyone has information about the author, please contact George Steinfeld, PhD, Greater Bridgeport Children's Services Center, 1450 Barnum Ave., Bridgeport, CN, 06610.

APPEAL FOR HELP FROM LEPER COLONY

Dear Editor:

As the Sister Superior of Culion Leper Colony, I serve as a resource for not only the residents' spiritual needs, but also for their other needs, large and small. The people of Culion are poor since many of those afflicted with leprosy are prevented from working to supplement government rations. They come from poor families barely able to support themselves, and in many cases, eager to forget family members who are lepers. To date we have 57 children in our orphanage.

We have been in operation for five years, and at this point find it difficult to make do with what the government gives us for support. We have no other alternative than to solicit support from willing donors, and that is why we are writing to you.

We would be glad to receive donations of any kind: money, vitamins, foodstuffs, used clothing, blankets, school supplies, and anything else you think might be helpful.

Thank you in advance for your support.

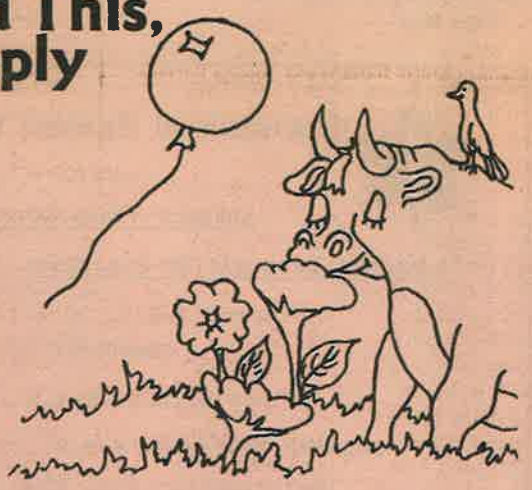
As You Read This, Breathe Deeply



Lay back, let yourself be fully supported, keep breathing, and be aware of all of areas of your body. Let your awareness drift around and find any tension. As you lie relaxed, let thoughts of the Eric Berne Fund and its goals drift through your mind. Be aware of any changes in body tension. As you continue to focus on the Fund, also focus on the stress points. While breathing, increase the stress, hold it a few seconds, and then let it go. Repeat this twice for each sensitive body area, especially for those connected with thoughts of the Fund. When all areas are as relaxed as possible, let yourself think clearly and comfortably and make your decision.

Keeping In Touch

REGION I - PACIFIC, ASIA

History of TA in Japan — According to M. Kano, the first foreign TA specialist to come to Japan was Giselle Richardson from Montreal, Canada. She taught one- or two-day courses on TA at Saint Paul University in Tokyo and at Kyushu University in Fukuoka around 1976. Since then, many well-known transactional analysts have done training in Japan, including J. Dusay, J. Moy, H. Capers, J. Morrison, M. James, R. & M. Goulding, and S. Karpman.

REGION III — EUROPE

At the 1987 European TA Association Conference in Chamonix, France last July, ITAA President Lucy Freedman and Raymond Hostie discuss the first Raymond Hostie Award, given to Gysa Jaoui.

Gysa Jaoui of Paris was awarded the first Raymond Hostie prize for an important original French-language contribution to the TA literature. Her article, "The Permission Wheel," was published in Actualites en Analyse Transactional. Congratulations, Gysa!

Frances Bonds-White of Philadelphia presented a paper, "Through Roles to the Self in Group Psychotherapy," at the Seventh European Symposium in Group Analysis this September in Oxford, England.

Claude Steiner recently returned from a tour of Europe during which he conducted his new workshop, "When a Man Loves a Woman," in London, Berlin, Paris, Barcelona, and Valencia. The workshop, directed at men and focused on what men contribute to relationships, was very well received.

The 14th Annual European TA Conference will be held July 3-7, 1987, at Norbreck Castle, Blackpool, England. The theme of the conference, "The TA Mosaic: Diversity Through Unity," will be explored in four days of workshops, panels, and papers. Also on the agenda are an official TA 101 course, TA exams before the conference, and a Training Endorsement Workshop afterward. For fun there will be social evenings, a gala night, and the chance to star in the talent night. The Conference Hotel has a swimming pool, sauna, and snooker. Nearby in Blackpool are seven miles of sandy beaches, tennis, golf, bowling, horseriding, ice and roller skating, theaters, cinemas, and ballrooms. The site is also close to the Lake District, Wales, and Scotland for holidays before and after the conference. For more information, contact Conference Coordinator Julie Hay, Action Development, 25 Grant Rd., Harrow, Middx HA3 7SB, England.

Exams in Europe — Alice Stevenson, COC Chairperson, reports that during the Level I exams in Chamonix last July, an experiment suggested by C. St. Pierre (EATA Council member from France) was tried. With the agreement of the EATA Council on Certification (COC), observers were brought into the exams to give feedback to the examiners. Afterward the observers met to discuss how they were received and what benefits there were to the candidates and the examiners.

Each observer asked the exam chair if they would allow a viewer to sit in, and the observer stayed out of the exam process. Each viewer reported a positive experience as they observed overall process, stroking, feedback transactions, cooperation vs. competition, group action as directed by the chairperson, time keeping, and the straightness of the questions. The oberservers' reports lasted only ten minutes and occurred after the candidate left the room.

No discussion was to take place there, but it turned out that examiners felt better being watched. They liked the recognition and heard the information as strokes they wanted. The idea will be discussed further to see if it should be repeated during future exams.

REGION V - USA

ITAA Executive Director Susan Sevilla (center) at a reception given by President Lucy Freedman (left) during the Chicago Summer Conference to honor Susan for successfully completing her training to become a Certified Association Executive. Jackie Ward-Flaggs, ITAA Director of Credentials is on the right.

Dr. Anne Napier, RN, CS, RM, of Southwest Harbor, Maine, was recently reelected to the American Nurses' Association Cabinet on Nursing Practice for a second two-year term. Her continuing membership on the Cabinet means that she will remain Chair of the Board on Certification, the credentialing body of the American Nurses Association (ANA). Anne is currently in private practice as a nurse psychotherapist and consultant.

Editor's Note: We were delighted to receive Anne's note in response to our request for information about ITAA members who hold offices in other professional associations. If you hold such an office, please let us know, both so we can recognize you for your achievement and in order to build bridges to other professional groups.

Valerie Batts, one of the founding members of a Richmond, Virginia non-profit organization called Visions, reports that seven four-day "Changing Racism" workshops were held there during the last year, with seven more scheduled for the upcoming year. In addition, Visions has received a $20,000 start-up grant to begin fund raising for the Wright Center, a day-care program for disabled elders. Visions also provides psychotherapy, counseling, and psychological assessment for adults, children, and families. Approximately 75% of their clients are black, with a growing number of black male adolescents. They are committed to providing services to those who traditionally might not be well-served in private practice or mental health centers.

Bill Krieger, newly-elected Vice-Chair of the Academy of Certified Clinical Mental Health Counselors, is pleased to share that TA is one area covered on the written exam for certified clinical mental health counselors.

Fanita English writes to say that, although there were some difficulties during the Chicago Conference publicizing Amnesty International's activites, about $140 was collected for AI's Urgent Action Appeal. Volunteers set up a table to answer questions and collect donations, and special thanks goes to Marlyn Crossen and USATAA for their support and help. Anyone wishing to make additional donations may send them to Amnesty International USA, PO Box 1270, Nederland, CO 80466.

ALL REGIONS

Twenty-Five Year Members Honored — During the Summer Conference in Chicago, the following members were honored for 25 years of membership in the ITAA: M. Boyce, V. Callaghan, W. Collins, J. Concannon (deceased), F. Ernst, K. Everts, R. Goulding, G. Haiberg (deceased), T. Harris, M. James, P. McCormick, W. Poindexter, and C. Steiner. Thanks to each of them for their dedication to the advancement of TA.
