INSIDE:

SPECIAL INSERT ON NOVEMBER 1992
ITAA/NZTAA CONFERENCE IN AUCKLAND

Happy New Year, and Much More

by Robin Maslen

I can put it off no longer. Tomorrow I take the reins of office, and so I must find my little bits of paper with some collected thoughts on what to write for The Script. I hate writing. Is it that English teacher so long ago, who never said a good word to her students, at least not to me? A Presidential Message as I take office! What on earth will you, the membership, want to hear from me? Something more than Happy New Year, but that also.

I am acutely aware that about half the membership does not read English and so does not get The Script. That is unfortunate, because one of my main reasons for staying in the ITAA is for the joy of meeting others and so putting my life in some perspective. I do this much better in person than in writing.

I look forward—health and finances permitting—to traveling to the ITA, EATA, USATAA, and ITAA conferences to find out first-hand how we can keep the ITAA relevant as the Affiliates get stronger.

However, I am also aware that through these conferences I often meet the lone TA person, struggling in some relatively isolated part of the world, be it the Philippines, Tasmania, Leningrad, India, or Shanghai, to learn more about TA without the privilege of membership in a learned TA study group. For a very few, rich enough to afford it, one trip to one international conference is a highlight in their learning.

So why do people join and stay in the ITAA? Someone famous sometime said something like, "Look not for what you can get, but for what you can give." I am in a lucky position to be able to give some time and money, however I have received heaps back in intellectual stimulation, some handy hints, good friendship, challenging tasks, fun and relaxation, a top-up of strokes, and a realization that people all over the world are not much different in their neediness.

The role of the ITAA is changing, with most people interested in TA meeting most of their needs through their local study groups and associations, with 90% of conference attendees coming from local residents, with half our membership in Europe, with TA in its birthplace in the USA needing a big boost to reverse the declining membership, and the fax machine changing the face of doing business.

We have some tasks ahead of us: to simplify our administration and make it more financially efficient, to rewrite our bylaws to bring them into line with our changing role, to boost and support our TA trainers to provide more 101s and to invite more members into our network, and to keep our training and certification processes relevant so that not only will our "stars" be recognized, but the ordinary people like me can jump the hurdles.

I believe that the future survival of the ITAA rests with the training and certification work of the T & C Council, and this needs continued support. No PTMs and TMs, no 101s. No 101s, no members likely to stay on to keep up the good work. Our challenge will be to keep away from "either-or" and to go for "AND" solutions. Our conferences will need to cater to advanced and in-depth intellectual challenge AND basic and practical ideas. Our Journal and Script will need to face this challenge also. We need to be able to give something to members AND to be able to receive their help. We need to recognize our TA birthplace AND where our membership has now spread. We need to balance our energies on serving the direct membership of the ITAA AND on our growing Affiliates. These challenges will take a lot of time, patience, cooperation, tolerance, and a willingness to listen and understand, something most of us are really good at doing with our clients.

Our challenge will be to keep away from "either-or" and to go for "AND" solutions.

Robin Maslen

My wife, Val, and I wish you all a peaceful and optimistic year. We send this from our beach house in South Australia which looks across to Antarctica, where a few months ago the whales returned for the first time in 70 years, with no human interference, to mate and give birth a few meters from the beaches. □

Poet's Corner Inaugurated

by Donna Bickley

I was holding my breath while I dashed off my response to Gerry Cartmel's call for someone to coordinate a Poet's Corner in The Script. What had I done? When I caught my breath again, I felt excited, especially when Gerry accepted my offer to be that someone.

"Hello!" Our adventure in poetry begins. I'm an ITAA Certified Member, a licensed MSW, a Board Certified Diplomate in Clinical Social Work, a Certified Alcoholism Counselor, and a Clinicial Member in the American Association of Marriage and Family Therapists. I am also in private practice with my husband in Towson, Maryland, USA. We have been told that we were the first husband and wife team to pass the Certified Member exam on the same day.

An undergraduate English major, I am a freelance writer, returned to the keyboard four years ago after a 25-year hiatus. My writing has won awards, been published in—and accepted for publication in—and rejected by a variety of periodicals, local and national.

Gerry asked if I had a theoretical base (incorporating TA) to my appreciation of poetry and nature (I'm also a "serious" gardener and bird-watcher). Here's my answer: I see the Natural Child as the part of us that connects to the universe and others. When freed from not-OK-making Parental influence and "Unnatural" Child adaptations, we naturally make and appreciate poetry (connecting to others' experience or communicating ours in some powerful way that moves the other), and we connect with nature.

From the time I could walk, I combed the woods for wildflowers, gardened, fished, hunted, and roamed the fields of our family farm in search of Indian arrowheads. My grandfather, a small-town poet with a sixth-grade education, introduced me to reading and literature. Life events and influences lured me away from both writing and nature, but my interest remained, dormant.

In addition to incorporating parental values about nature and language, I have developed an Adult sensitivity to connection with the earth and others as ethical and rational considerations. Clearly humans can no longer afford war, nor to be the "Lords of Nature," but must view ourselves as part of the earth, responsible for conscious guardianship that does not make our wants more important than other creatures' needs.

Donna Bickley

Poetry is about and for connection. Of course to be poetry, the connection must be conveyed through good Adult skills. Child feelings, eidetic "seeings," and Adult ideas must be presented in a unique way, in compact, paced form using symbolic language, imagery that Free Fish and Chips!

A terrific lineup of presenters awaits participants at the Institute for TA (ITA) Conference in Brighton, England, March 22-25, 1992. Jack Dusay will give the opening address, and 14-16 workshops a day will be offered by presenters such as Dusay, Kalman Kaplan, Steve Karpman, Landy Gobes, Joe Cassius, Sue Fish, Carole Gesme, Mary Cox, Jean Clarke, Jenni Hine, Gordon Law, Diana Shmuckler, Margaret Turpin, Ian Stewart, Vann Joines, Petruska Clarkson, Maria Gilbert, Robert Massey, Gordon Hewitt, Alice Stevenson, and Julie Hay, to name just a few. And if that isn't enough, Nick Williams, Conference Publicity Coordinator, has offered free fish and chips to anyone who presents him with this notice while in Brighton. Now how can you turn down both outstanding presentations and free fish and chips? See you in Brighton! □

Our thanks to ITAA Publication Assistant Ann Moen for designing and preparing the New Zealand Conference insert beginning on page 3 of this issue.

EDITOR'S COLUMN

by Gerald Cartmel

Do We Need Central Locking?

In this issue we welcome Donna Bickley, who will coordinate a Poet's Corner for the newsletter. She comes with a great track record. My information indicates that she has, in addition to her MSW and CM (ITAA), experience as a Resource Reviewer for the TAJ since 1985 and has won various awards for her writing and poetry. Donna has a great and educated interest in domestic gardening, and it is my hope that she will bring new perspectives to TA. "Instead of thinking that the left hemisphere is specialized for language, it may, more accurately, be specialized for symbolic representation" (Restak, cited in Reanney, 1991, p. 185). Donna, you have the world stage because you risked yourself. Good luck!

In our December 1991 issue Bill Falzett emerged to do joyful and constructive battle with Tony White's theoretical propositions. Both, having valid positions, demonstrated how to express their opinions from the "I'm OK, You're OK" position. Thank you to both of them. Add the thrust of Howard Douglass's Editor's Letter in the October 1991 TAJ, and the various voices seem to be calling all at once for a return to simplicity, concentration on practicality, incorporation of concepts from other fields, and construction of new and possibly fundamental or abstract theory. Personally, I thought the October TAJ under Howard's husbandry covered this spectrum.

This month, as food for thought, I suggest that the concept of recycling lies deep within our humanness: rebirth, religion, restoration, repentence, circadean rhythm, lunar and solar cycles, and an associated longing to return to the simpler days of the Noble Savage, etc. Therein lies our security blanket, ensuring our immortality, making the future predictable or inevitable by relying upon the past for the future.

As to the future, "For this is the great secret, which was known to all educated men in our day, that by what men think, we create the world around us, daily new" (Zimmer-Bradley, cited in Reanney, 1991, p. 218). It could be argued that such creation is dependent upon thinking and language. But do we need new thinking? For myself, I do not want or need a car with central locking and electrically operated windows. I have not watched television for weeks, and just because YOU thought it up does not require ME to be involved. Or does it? As clinicians, teachers, or organizational people, we know other people will be caught up in the effects of new thought, whether they want to be or not.

Where is all this leading? In previous editor's columns I have suggested that the boundaries of TA could be expanded to cover larger communities and to explore more deeply within our psyche. Now I am asking if the Permissions are sufficient. Does TA need more HOWS? Having partially decontaminated our Parent ego states, do we need to learn how to think not only more boldly but also newly in order to deal with the inevitable changes occurring in our world, thus avoiding reliance upon the past except as experience?

I understand anomie in Emile Durkheim's terms: "that condition of society which results from the disintegration of a commonly accepted NORMATIVE code" (Bullock, Stallybrass, & Trombley, 1988, p. 36). If anomie is associated with subjective thinking, then it is likely that isolation of the individual will increase as knowledge and language increase. Will the need for therapists, teachers, and organizational experts increase concurrently?

Three circles, scripts, racket systems, and passivity help identify how the past impacts on the present, neatly represented as:

> A rational mind, based on the impressions that it receives from its limited perspective, forms structures which thereafter determine what it will or will not accept freely. From that point on, regardless of how the real world actually operates, this rational mind, following its self-imposed rules, tries to superimpose on the real world its own version of what must be. (Zukav, 1979/1984, p. 181)

But where are the models for thinking upon which the construction of our future depends, and who will be the Masters who lead the way? If you are to be a Master, you may wish to consider some guidelines: "This is another characteristic of the Master. Whatever he does, he does with the enthusiasm of doing it for the first time. This is the source of his unlimited energy" (Zukav, 1979/1984, p. 36), and "A Master is someone who started before you" (Zukav, 1979/1984, p. 34).

And so a true Master is always a student, who may have started before you. A Student may be a Master, or simply someone learning by rote to become a mechanic or technician.

ITAA Sources of Financial Aid

The ITAA has four sources of financial aid available to members in 1992.

Eric Berne Fund for the Future: Accummulated interest is available in the form of grants to individuals and organizations to fund research and education in transactional analysis. Priority will be given to proposals related to evaluating the effectiveness of various applications of TA theory. Approximately $3000 is available in 1992. The deadline for grant proposals is June 1, 1992. Grants are available to ITAA members and to nonmembers. Contact the ITAA office for information on grant criteria and requirements.

The Scholarship Loan Fund: Accummulated interest is available in the form of loans and grants to ITAA members-in-training to fund training toward certification in transactional analysis. Approximately $3,000 is available in 1992.

In 1990 the Scholarship Loan Fund was broadened to include the following new uses: 10%, or about $1,000, of the annual funds are available by application for attendance at TA conferences and/or for payment of ITAA dues. ITAA committees may also apply for any remaining funds after November 1 of any year.

Although SLF loans are available all year, the priority filing date for grant applications is June 1, 1992. Contact the ITAA office for information and an application form. □

Global TA Action: Approximately $3000 is available to agencies or organizations, in small grants of $500 each, to fund projects that are socially meaningful or which relate to issues of global concern, especially those dealing with environmental, health, mental health, human rights, food, housing, education, peace, spirituality, and other care-of-our-world issues. Proposals are due June 1, 1992.

TAlent Dues Reductions: Members who reside in economically disadvantaged countries are eligible for 25% or 50% reductions in dues. These reductions are shown on the membership dues invoice of continuing members. Contact ITAA for details on which countries qualify for reductions. □ enables powerful communication (connection, transformation, insight). Simple outpourings of heartfelt suffering may be moving, but they are not poetry; they are therapy.

CALL FOR POETRY

After saying, "Hello!," I am now inviting you to connect, to say "Hello" back, and to share your Inner Poet with us all. Access your muse, write your poem, shape it, rewrite it, rewrite it again, share it with friends, listen to their feedback, type it, enclose a couple biographical sentences, and send it to "Poet's Corner," c/o the ITAA office.

If I like it, think it has merit and relevance to ITAA members, I'll say "yes," but if I say "No," I will not make you not-OK (you should see my file drawer of rejection slips), and I'll give a reason. Maybe I will say, "Wow!" I will not say, "Goodbye," but I may say "Try again."

Call for Papers

A special theme issue on organizational issues and TA is being planned for the Transactional Analysis Journal. You are invited to submit papers that deal with uses of TA in relation to organizational issues, including those at the level of large groups, corporations, organizations, associations, states, and nations. Papers addressing issues of global importance, such as war, peace, politics, environmental issues, and social action are especially welcome. Please follow the guidelines for submission of articles printed on the inside front cover of each issue of the TAJ or contact the ITAA office for a copy of the guidelines. Deadline for receipt of articles is July 1, 1992, not April 1 as previously published.

Call for President-Elect and Trustee Nominations

The Nominating Committee is now accepting nominations for the 1992 election slate. The following positions will be open:

President-Elect
Two Trustees—Europe (2)

Nominations require the name and consent signature of the nominee (it may be yourself), the name of the person making the nomination, and the name of the person seconding the nomination. Send nominations to Bill Cornell, Chair of the Nominating Committee, c/o the ITAA office. The close of nominations is March 21, 1992.

Note: Because of changes in the scheduling of the annual ITAA conference, there will be no nominations at the 1992 annual membership meeting. Instead, members may be nominated through the nominating committee as outlined here or by petition with the signature of ten voting members. □

Partnership is a particular form of relationship.

In partnerships parties are treated equally regardless of differences. Power and resources are shared cooperatively. In partnerhsip everybody wins. Partnership and TA philosophy fit. Partnership is the theme of the 1992 joint ITAA and NZTAA conference in Auckland, New Zealand.

In comparing cultural styles in Western history, partnership may be contrasted with the prevailing dominator style, where power and privilege are used to oppress the disadvantaged.

In New Zealand partnership has great significance. In 1840 the British signed a treaty of partnership with the tangata whenua, the indigenous people of the land, the Maori. This promise of partnership still awaits fulfillment, because the Europeans quickly colonized, dominated, and nearly destroyed Maori culture and identity. The call today is for true partnership between the two peoples.

Future survival for ourselves and the planet may depend on finding ways to define and achieve effective partnerships between humans and nature, nations and races, men and women, rich and poor, clients and professionals. Whereas dominator cultures abound, partnership models are few.

The 1992 International TA Conference will enable TA to contribute toward a culture of partnership.

Tony White

LLOYD GEERING, of New Zealand, the first-day keynote speaker, will present an all-day institute on Carl Jung (Thursday, 9am-3pm).

MARGARET WHITE, PhD, TSTA, Australia, will present
"Solving Leadership Problems."
Wednesday, 9am-5pm

Leadership of any size or kind of group can be exciting, terrifying, stimulating, or worrying. Your leadership, and feelings about leading, are directly related to your understanding of the answer to Eric Berne's question, "Why does anyone do what anybody else tells them to?"

Jean Illsley Clarke had the perceptiveness and determination to tease out Berne's model of leadership from Structure and Dynamics of Organizations and Groups. This workshop builds on Jean's clarification.

Berne's classifications of leadership are given as Charismatic, Effective, and Designated Leaders. Participants will identify which situations call for which form of leadership; experience each of these forms and learn how others experience them; and find out what is wanted from the other two types of leaders.

Participants will also be offered the opportunity to identify the aspects of their own personalities (including drivers and ego states) which suit them for the different forms of leadership.

This is a "know your leadership self and put that together with Berne's brilliant analysis of leadership functioning" workshop. Given this combination of information, problems become an exciting and stimulating challenge, and sleepless nights of leadership worrying can be avoided.

Margaret is a clinical neuropsychologist who has worked extensively on problem solving with organizations.

GEORGE A. KOHLRIESER, PhD, TSTA, USA, will present "Attachment Theory: Clinical and Organizational Applications of Affectional Bonding."
Wednesday, 9am-5pm

From cradle to grave, life involves a changing script of affectional bonds. Attachment theory is a way to conceptualize the patterns of how humans form, maintain, break, and renew strong affectional bonds. It explains many forms of physical, emotional, and spiritual distress. Ego state development and life scripts are organized around attachment and separation experiences; transactions and games are manifestations of how attachment behavior functions in the present.

Attachment theory holds that the energy, quality, and even length of life is directly related to maintaining strong social bonding. The process of attaching and separating can create significant and even fatal stress reactions. The process of bonding and grieving are at the core of healthy attachment and separation behavior.

This institute will focus on the clinical and organizational applications of attachment theory using lecture, role playing, and experiential exercises to offer participants information, skill development, and attitude self-evaluation. This model has been successfully applied in a wide range of fields.

George is a clinical psychologist specializing in research and applications of attachment theory to stress and conflict management, hostage negotiations, and organizations. Consultant to numerous organizations, he also teaches regularly in over 15 countries. He is Director of Shiloah Centers in the United States and in Europe.

PEARL DREGO, TSTA, & OSWALD SUMMERTON, TSTA, of India, will present "The Many Dimensions of Game Analysis."
Thursday, 9am-3pm

From their favorite fairy tales, participants will distinguish the intrapsychic levels of games through identity roles and action roles. Four models of game analysis will be used to analyze the same data and to generate healthy alternatives for reframing the script scenario.

The workshop will also study the Game Pentagon to identify options for family and organizational change, and the Alcoholic game will be used to clarify the relationship systems involved in addiction and co-dependency.

A historical development of Berne's idea of game analysis and the evolution of game analysis will be discussed together with its effectiveness for treatment and training.

TONY WHITE, MAPsS, TSTA, Australia, will present "Bonding in Partnerships and the Transference."
Thursday, 9am-3pm

We will look at various aspects of relationships and partnerships, focusing on bonding or attachment in relationships, including the script imago diagram, which is a theoretical advancement of Berne's original group imago diagram.

Partnership will then be considered developmentally, especially related to bonding during the formative years. This is included in Tony's developmental model of the Tri-phasic Separation-Individuation Theory, which points out that psychological separation occurs in three distinct phases during the first 18 years of life.

The role these new developments have for the transference or psychotherapy relationship is addressed: What role does attachment have in transference? What sort of problems are best dealt with by such treatment? How can one have transference without a symbiosis?

This institute is both didactic and experiential, with many exercises to compliment the new theory.

Tony is a registered psychologist and member of the Australian Psychological Society in Perth. In his private practice he treats all ages; he also has an active training program for transactional analysts. His six books are on a variety of TA subjects. One of his specialties is the development of new TA theory & practice, most notably the two ego state model.

NEW ZEALAND's

200 km (1000 miles) of length contain the North, South, Stewart, Chatham (and some smaller) Islands. It is a land of active volcanoes, hot springs, fold mountains with glaciers, and fertile plains. Seasons occur opposite to those of the Northern hemisphere, so spring "Down Under" begins in late September.

New Zealand's many sheep well outnumber the 3.3 million two-legged human inhabitants, a third of whom live in the Northern Auckland region. Among these is the largest Polynesian population in the Pacific. Although English is the language of the land, spoken Maori is encouraged as a way of preserving the unique heritage of this indigenous people.

OF VISAS, VOLTS, AND VACCINATIONS

You need a valid passport (but usually not a visa) to enter New Zealand: check with your travel agent or airline. Vaccinations are not required.

Electricity is 220-240 volts AC—50 cycles. Hotel bathrooms are equipped with 110-volt razor outlets.

New Zealand's food is the freshest, including a wide range of seafood and the incomparable spring lamb. New Zealand is a free-trade country. Shops are open every day in major locations. Great buys are local handcrafts, art works, pottery, sheepskin, and active-wear clothing.

AUCKLAND is commonly known as the "City of Sails," New Zealand's largest and most beautiful harbor city. Bridging two harbors, Auckland is situated on 60 volcanic cones which form a network of picturesque parks and reserves. From this cosmopolitan center, with its wonderful multicultural flavor, visitors can easily reach scenic beaches, lush green country- side, hot pools, and relaxing Gulf islands.

A MESSAGE FROM ITAA PRESIDENT ROBIN MASLEN

As the first President of ITAA from "Down Under" I look forward to welcoming you to the ITAA/NZTAA conference. New Zealand is a beautiful country, situated some four hours flying time from the East coast of Australia and about eight hours from Hawaii. Visitors from the Northern hemisphere will see a different night sky in Auckland, with, for example, the Southern Cross. As you get a new perspective of the sky, I trust that the excellent range of workshops being offered and the interesting people attending will also stimulate a new perspective on your personal and working life.

The three keynote speakers of the conference will give some local flavor. You will also have the unique opportunity to be welcomed at a formal traditional Maori ceremony on one of their ceremonial meeting places near the Conference site. (In early times this could be quite a dangerous ceremony for visitors).

New Zealanders are proud to be viewed as being quite different from Australians. Over the years other TA trainers and I have visited New Zealand to train members and to attend the local Australasian conferences. There is now a strong TA Association in New Zealand, where trainers, trainees, and other members work together in the typical warm and friendly New Zealand culture.

What better place to represent the "Partnership" theme of the conference? I can assure you that you will be welcomed and cared for by Evan Sherrard, the convenor, and his hard-working team. If you take the pre-conference tour or travel on to the South Island or to Australia afterward, you will have the chance to see some beautiful scenic countryside, beautiful Sydney, the barrier reef, or to go to the wild "bush" beyond and to meet other friendly locals.

It may be many years before ITAA holds another conference so far below the equator. I encourage you to make a special effort to take this unique opportunity to come and help make this conference a great success.

Robin Maslen

Robin Maslen, ITAA President

WELCOME TO NEW ZEALAND !

Please make the acquaintance of some of the members of the New Zealand Conference Local Host Committee.

Evan Sherrard is the Conference Convenor. Evan, B.Ag.Sc., STM, MA, TSTA, is a self-employed Presbyterian minister/psychotherapist in Auckland as well as a qualified psychodramatist. His wife, Isabelle, and daughter, Susan, are also important members of the Local Host Committee. Look for them at the Conference, where together they will present a workshop on the family.

CONFERENCE INFORMATION

FOUNDATIONS IN TRANSACTIONAL ANALYSIS (TA 101)

With Helen Campbell, (right) CTA, & Charlotte Daellenbach, CTA, President of the NZTAA

TA is a theory of personality and communication, a method of psychotherapy, and a useful tool in helping various organizations function effectively. This course is a useful "starting point" for conference attendees. Some conference workshops use TA theory at varying levels of complexity. TA 101 will provide a foundation for subsequent learning. Those who have never taken the course are encouraged to attend; those who took it before 1986 will likely find this version informative and challenging.

OFFERED MONDAY & TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 9 & 10.
SIGN UP ON THE REGISTRATION FORM.

CONTINUING EDUCATION UNITS

Participation in the ITAA Continuing Education events carries CEUs from the Training and Certifying Council of Transactional Analysts at the rate of one unit per one contact hour for workshop participation. The ITAA is also accredited by the National Board of Certified Counselors as an approved provider of continuing education.

TRAINING AND CERTIFICATION

The Board of Certification (BOC) Exams take place on Thursday, November 12.
The three-day Training Endorsement Workshop (TEW) is offered Monday to Wednesday, November 16-18.

TA SUPPORT GROUPS—BACK BY POPULAR DEMAND

These small-group meetings have been rated a highlight of every conference since they began in 1987, the brainchild of Carol Morris. They serve as mini-communities—a home base for people to return to and in which to share themselves and their conference experiences.

Because of inevitable scheduling challenges, support groups are once again offered at the crack of dawn (7:30 to 8:50 AM) Fri., Sat., & Sun., Nov. 13-15. (They're worth getting up for—honest!) Two certified members will act as peer facilitators.

One participant described the experience well: "This is not a place for therapy, but for mutual contact and support." Fun is also allowed.

KEYNOTE SPEAKERS

We are happy to announce three keynote speakers, each opening one of the three conference days: a Maori, Moana Jackson; an Aboriginal, Mary Ann Bin-Sallik; and a pakeha (Caucasian), Lloyd Geering.

Lloyd Geering

Dr. Bin-Sallik

LLOYD GEERING is one of New Zealand's leading thinkers. His wide knowledge of religions (including communism) and of other belief systems, including science, have led him to make public statements which have often offended those with narrower views. Ordained a Presbyterian Minister, he was once tried for heresy by the Presbyterian synod.

Dr. Geering has held Chairs at several theological colleges, was made a Commander of the British Empire by the Queen, and was appointed foundation Professor of Religious Studies at Victoria University in Wellington. He usually speaks to large audiences, drawn by the breadth of his vision and his willingness to share new and scholarly concepts with a lay audience.

DR. MARY ANN BIN-SALLIK holds a Doctorate in Education from Harvard. An Australian Aboriginal, she is currently head of the Aboriginal Studies and Teacher Education Centre at the University of South Australia. She was the first Aborigine to graduate as nursing sister from the Darwin Hospital in Australia.

She has served on many Committees: the Review of Aboriginal Employment and Training Programs, producing the Miller Report in 1985, forerunner of Australia's major policy initiatives in Aboriginal employment, training and education; the National Aboriginal Employment and Training Committee; and the National Committee Against Discrimination in Employment and Occupation.

MOANA JACKSON is a prominent lawyer and Maori rights activist. His keynote speech topic will be featured in an upcoming Script.

MAORI WELCOME CEREMONY

The Maori traditional welcome, powhiri, is extended to those who visit a marae, a tribal gathering place. Such a welcome bridges the gulf between visitors and hosts by acknowledging ancestors, oneness with the land, and the affinity with a creator. Respect and reverence are alluded to in speeches and songs of welcome. Manaalitanga (hospitality) is further extended when visitors mingle with the homefold and sustenance is shared.

Input Sought on ITAA Conference Scheduling

In August 1989 the ITAA Board of Trustees approved a plan to revise the scheduling of ITAA conferences. Beginning with the Stamford Conference in October 1991, ITAA embarked on the new conference scheduling plan of holding one Annual Conference per year, scheduled for late October or early November. The ITAA Winter Congress was eliminated, and in its place the ITAA now designates the conference of another national or regional TA association—held in the month of March or April—as the site of ITAA Board and committee meetings. Inherent in this change was a major commitment to supporting regional conferences worldwide. It was hoped that the new plan would substantially boost the attendance at the conference of the sponsoring association.

Although some members are enthusiastic about the new conference scheduling plan, many members have protested and have requested consideration of other dates. One possibility is a return to August scheduling of the ITAA Annual Conference. However, it should be noted that one of the concerns about the August scheduling was the conflict it presented with the EATA conference in July.

The Board wishes to know how widespread these feelings are. What are your thoughts? Bill Cornell is Chair of the Ad Hoc Committee on Conference Scheduling. A report will be presented to the Board in Brighton, England, in March 1992. Please mail correspondence directly to Bill Cornell, Box 515, Rd. #5, Middle Road Extension, Gibsonia, PA 15044, or phone him at 412-784-1030. You can also fax your comments to the ITAA at 415-885-5998.

Note: The ITAA is actively seeking regional or national conferences to endorse. If you or your organization would like your event to be considered as an ITAA endorsed Conference, please address an invitation to the President, in care of the ITAA. □
